

PROPERTY RIGHTS AGREEMENT 10-10-03

Contribution Title: _____

Copyright Owner: _____ Medium: _____

Dear Donor:

The Germans from Russia Heritage Society is grateful for your contribution, which will become an invaluable resource to the organization, its members, and to its goal of preserving German-Russian heritage. We want to understand your wishes about the use of this donation in the future. Please initial the appropriate paragraphs to indicate the rights you wish to give to GRHS. If you don't initial any paragraphs, GRHS may not do anything with your donation except to keep it in its collection.

_____ Transfer of ownership title to the GRHS

This is the usual agreement between authors and publishers. It means that the article or document and associated graphics and images becomes the property of GRHS, which may then make all decisions about how it is used. Donors who wish to republish such an article or portions of it must request permission from GRHS, which is normally granted as a courtesy to the donor.

OR....

_____ Non-exclusive license to publish in any GRHS publication

This gives GRHS the right to use or sell copies of the donated property in any of its activities, publications, or those of its chapters. However, copyright ownership is retained by the donor, along with the right to republish, sell, or create derivative works from that property.

_____ Non-exclusive License for GRHS to create and publish derivative works

This gives GRHS the right to use the donated property as a basis for creating or having created new works, based upon the donated work, and publishing these in any GRHS publication. An example would be the preparation of an English translation from a donated German or Russian article. Another example would be the preparation of a digital version of a donated family history written on paper and publication of that history on the GRHS website. The donor retains the original copyright, and the new materials are copyrighted by the persons or organization that produced them.

_____ Additional rights or conditions

The donor certifies that to the best of his or her knowledge, he/she is either the copyright owner or authorized representative of the copyright owner with the authority to grant to GRHS the privileges above. Please attach copies of licenses involving copyrights to additional materials associated with this work that are not the property of the donor. GRHS takes no responsibility for erroneous representations.
